What is DTG (Direct-to-Garment) Printing?

DTG printing is a digital process where ink is directly applied to the surface of fabric using a specialized printer. It allows for vibrant, full-color designs with a soft feel, making it ideal for detailed artwork or smaller production runs. It works best on 100% cotton garments and is often used for creating custom t-shirts with photo-quality images.

What is DTF (Direct-to-Film) Printing?

DTF printing involves printing designs onto a special film, which is then transferred to fabric using heat and adhesive powder. This method is highly versatile and works on a variety of materials, including cotton, polyester, and blends. DTF is known for its durability and ability to handle both light and dark fabrics with ease.

What is Screen Printing?

Screen printing is a traditional printing technique where ink is pushed through a stencil or mesh screen onto fabric to create a design. It is ideal for high-volume production due to its efficiency and durability. Known for producing vibrant, long-lasting prints, this method works well for bold, single-color designs but can also handle multi-color prints with additional screens for each color. Screen printing is most commonly used on t-shirts, hoodies, and other apparel.
